

ABOUT

Matthew is a small town Oklahoma native that has a passion for transformational leadership, resiliency, and building strong relationships. He has indoctrinated over 2000 Airmen into the United States Air Force and has inspired individuals across the globe to “bust through obstacles”. His overarching goal is to bring resiliency stories from all over the world to the light so that others can learn and apply to their trials.

“The belief is that we are truly together when we are able to share and learn from one another’s rough experiences. Those experiences that didn’t break the individual but taught a lifelong lesson that can be used to fuel the success of future endeavors. The weight of the world is meant for more than one therefore, a helpful hand, even if it is perspective can make a big difference”.
